ADDITIONAL RESEARCH EXPERIENCE:

Primary Current Research Interests

Violence and Crime Prevention

* Integrating theories to understand dynamics of intergroup competition and violence (e.g., hate crimes, bullying, police aggression against minorities, military threats, terrorism, genocide, political conflict).
* Building a theoretical model of dangerous speech (i.e., propaganda that foments violence) in online forums via experimentation and open-source intelligence.
* Developing a disinformation detection engine to facilitate discerning hostile motives in online content.

* Applying theoretical models to understanding rejection-triggered aggression (e.g., stalking perpetration, school violence).
* Examining extremist narratives to identify pathways to deradicalization.
* Assessing the pay for success model of a prisoner rehabilitation program for reducing recidivism.

Interpersonal Relationships

* Studying influences of social networks and prejudice on relationship dynamics - from initial meeting to termination.
* Examining attitudes towards cross-sex friendships and their influence on romantic relationships.
* Conducting replications of important findings in psychology to identify replication rates within the field, focus on relationships science.

Evaluation

* Evaluating the mechanisms to improve equity in math education in Baton Rouge public schools.
* Evaluating the effectiveness of diverse interventions to curb under-age drinking.
* Examining the longitudinal efforts of NIH to expand the success of diverse candidates in biomedical sciences.

ADDITIONAL PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE:

Transmedia Outreach

When Director of the Social Relations Collaboratve at MSU, as part of my endeavor to make science accessible, I introduced a multi-pronged outreach campaign that includes:

- Initiated an internship program for local high school students to learn about psychological science in our lab.
- Got involved in the Society for Personality and Social Psychology Summer Program for Undergraduate Research to sponsor underrepresented students from schools without labs to work in our lab.
- Developed transmedia dissemination protocols:
  - A lab blog: http://www.socialrelationslab.com/relating-results---a-blog
  - A lab Twitter: https://twitter.com/SocialRelateLab
  - A lab Facebook page: https://www.facebook.com/SocialRelationsLab/
  - A YouTube vlog: https://www.youtube.com/channel/UC3F09bM-39xpCSh8BnCcE3A
  - Sample Infographs: https://magic.piktochart.com/output/14389492-friends-as-enemies https://magic.piktochart.com/output/14412802-gender-and-aggression-in-high-school https://magic.piktochart.com/output/14291805-year-1-survey-summary-school-safety https://magic.piktochart.com/output/15157327-bullying-in-groups
- Adopted open science practices by registering our work with the Open Science Framework: https://osf.io/e2c9k/

These endeavors have lived on in my new position at LSU, as I have:

- Sought collaborations with the Department of Psychology to mentor undergraduate research assistants,
- Volunteered with the Society of Personality and Social Psychology BECOME program to mentor underrepresented female scholars.
- Continued to publish publicly accessible science via The Conversation.

Advising

- Academic Advisor for 35 advanced psychology majors per year, 2006-2011. 15 in 2014.
- Committee Member for 5 graduate research projects in psychology at MSU, 2006-2012, one dissertation committee for a PhD candidate in Marketing at MSU, two dissertation committee members for PhD candidates in Criminology, an external member for a PhD candidate in Family Social Science at the University of Texas – Austin, and external member for the PhD candidate at the University of British Columbia.
- Louisiana State University: Although I am not affiliated with an academic program, I mentor one undergraduate research assistant from the Psychology Department and two graduate students from the Sociology Department. I also have three mentees through SPSP's BECOME program. I maintain advisory responsibilities for one of my former MSU PhD students.
- Mississippi State University Thesis/Research Adviser: 2 PhD graduate students, 20 Masters graduate students (2005-2014, until Masters program termination), 202 undergraduate research assistants. Members of the lab have won the Northeast Mississippi Daily Journal Undergraduate Research Award, the Psychology Scholar award, the Outstanding Student Award, as well as multiple presentation awards and Travel Awards from SPSP. A number have gone onto graduate programs in Clinical, Experimental, Developmental, Counseling, School, and Social psychology, as well as law school and Family Social Science and Sociology programs. I have an 92% acceptance rate among grad school applicants from my lab.
- University of Missouri Research Adviser: Two Undergraduate Research Mentorship Program students, two Missouri Alliance for Minority Participation in Research interns, one University Research Scholar, one Chancellor's Undergraduate Research Scholar, one graduate student, two honors thesis students, three advanced directed studies, three paid undergraduate research assistants funded by the Office of Research and four directed research students. Every undergraduate research award that arose between the Spring of 2004 and my departure in the summer of 2006 was won by a member of my lab.
- University of Minnesota Research Supervisor of 15 volunteer research assistants, 10 honors thesis students, 10 Directed Research students, 3 post-baccalaureate research assistants, 2 Research Experience for Undergraduates summer fellows, 1 Undergraduate Research Partnership program student and one Undergraduate Research Opportunity Program student at the University of Minnesota. The largest lab I managed involved 20 undergraduate research assistants needed for my dissertation project. The majority of these students went onto graduate programs or professional schools, including three in graduate programs in social psychology (Seth Gitter, Jonathan Kunstman, and Tiffany Burkhardt). Four went on to professional research positions or two into graduate Marketing programs, two into graduate social work, an two to law school.
- Academic Adviser in the University of Minnesota Department of Psychology January 1999-June 2000 (1200+ Psychology majors)
